

Gibberd, Frederick 1908 - 1984

Frederick Gibberd was born in Kenilworth, Coventry, England, on 7 January 1908. He was articled to the firm of Crouch Butter & Savage in Birmingham during which time he studied part-time at Birmingham School of Architecture from 1925 to 1929.

In 1930 he moved to London and from 1930 to 1932 worked as an assistant to the architect Ernest Berry Webber (1896-1963) and in 1932 set up his own practice in London [subsequently known as Frederick Gibberd Partnership and now Gibberd]. In the early days of the practice he shared an office with fellow architect Francis Reginald Stevens Yorke (1906-1962), an avowed Modernist and founder member in 1933 of the Modern Architectural Research (MARS) Group. They collaborated on a number of projects and were joint authors of influential book The Modern Flat (London: The Architectural Press, 1937).

Gibberd was declared unfit for military service during World War Two and was initially engaged in the design of air raid shelters. In 1942 he was appointed Principal of the Architectural Association School of Architecture in London a post he held until 1944.

Gibberd was elected a Licentiate of the Royal Institute of British Architects (LRIBA) in 1938; a Fellow of the Royal Society of British Architects (FRIBA) in 1939; an Associate of the Royal Academy (ARA) in 1961; and a Royal Academician (RA) in 1969. He was also a Fellow of the Society of Industrial Artists (FSIA), and in the 1930s was a member of the MARS Group. In 1967 he was knighted for services to architecture. He received the European Architectural Heritage Award in 1975 and the Royal Town Planning Association's gold medal.

Gibberd was the author of several books of books on architecture planning and design. He died in Harlow, Essex, on 9 January 1984.

Works

Gibberd designed his first significant building, Pullman Court, a block of modern-style flats in Streatham Surrey [now London] in 1934-36 which was well received in the architectural press, however it was not until after the war that he began to make his presence known as an architect with a number of high-profile commissions including London Airport, Heathrow (1950-1969), the Roman Catholic Metropolitan Cathedral of Christ the King in Liverpool (1960-67), the Inter-Continental Hotel in London (1968), London Central Mosque (1969), Coutts Bank in the Strand, London (1969), Kielder Reservoir (1969) and the Harpur Centre Shopping Centre in Bedford (1969). He was also Architect-Planner for Harlow New Town in Essex (1946-72), and was planning consultant for a number of other authorities.
