

Treadwell, Henry John 1862 - 1910

Henry John Treadwell was born in Lambeth, Surrey [now London], England in 1862. He was articled to Franklin & Andrews of Ludgate Hill, London, and was then assistant to the Giles Gough & Trollope in London.

Treadwell established his own independent architectural practice in London in 1884 and from 1890 to 1910 was in partnership with Leonard Martin (1869-1936) as Treadwell & Martin.

Treadwell & Martin were responsible for leaving a "trail of remarkable little buildings across London's West End" [Edwardian Architecture: A Biographical Dictionary' by A. Stuart Gray (London: Gerald Duckworth & Co. Ltd., 1985 p.353), Photographs of the the entrance hall of 'Pyports' in Cobham, Surrey, a dining room fireplace at Cobham, and the drawing room and dining room fireplaces at 'The Lych Gate House', Cobham, designed by Treadwell & Martin, are illustrated in 'The Studio Yearbook of Decorative Art' 1907 (pp.74, 113, 114, 115). The Treadwell & Martin partnership was dissolved following the death of Treadwell in 1910.

Treadwell's address was given as 2 Waterloo Place, Pall Mall, London in 1904. He died in London in on 24 October 1910.
