

Cooke & Harrison

Cooke & Harrison [also known as E. G. Cooke and H. St. J. Harrison] was an architectural partnership formed in London, England in the 1920s by Edith Gillian Harrison (1898-1974) and her husband Harry St. John Harrison (1894-1989). They had offices in Gray's Inn Square, London.

In the 1930s they designed three houses in Littlestone, Kent. A drawing and ground- and first-floor plans of proposed houses at Lawn Road in Hampstead, London, designed by Cooke & Harrison is illustrated in 'Decorative Art' 1930 (p.58)
