

Bodley, George Frederick 1827 - 1907

George Frederick Bodley was born in Hull, England on 14 March 1827. After leaving school in 1845, he was a pupil of George Gilbert Scott (1811-1878) for five years. He then remained with Scott until 1856 when he set up his own practice in London. From 1869 to 1897 he was in partnership with Thomas Garner (1839-1906) as Bodley & Garner.

Together with George Gilbert Scott II and John Dando Sedding, Bodley was, wrote Gavin Stamp, "one of the three architects principally responsible for undermining the hegemony of High Victorian Gothic" [Stamp, Grove Art Online]. His output was confined almost exclusively to church architecture, and he was closely associated with the Anglo-Catholic wing of the Church of England.

Bodley was responsible for giving Morris, Marshall, Morris & Co. their first commissions for stained glass windows in his early churches. These included St. Michael's in Selsley (1859-62), and St. Martin's on the hill in Scarborough (1861-63).

In addition to their work as architects, in 1874, Garner and Bodley, with Gilbert Scott, Jnr. (1839-1897), also established Watts & Co. an interior decoration company that designed and produced textiles, wallpaper, embroideries and stained glass. The business had premises at 30 Baker Street, Portman Square, London. In its originality of design, the work created by Watts & Co. has been compared with that produced by Morris & Co.

The Bodley & Garner architectural partnership was dissolved by mutual agreement in 1898 following Garner's conversion to Roman Catholicism

Bodley exhibited on several occasions at the Royal Academy in London between 1854 and 1907 and was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy (ARA) in 1882 and a full Academician (RA) in 1902. He was also elected a Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects (FRIBA) in 1869. He died in Water Eaton, Oxfordshire on 21 October 1907.
