

Dykes (T.) & Robertson c. 1898 - c. 1905

T. Dykes & Robertson was an architectural firm founded in Glasgow, Scotland by Thomas Dykes (1853-1930) and Andrew Robertson (1868-1932) in c.1898.

The firm designed Flint's Tea Rooms for the Glasgow International Exhibition in 1901.

The practice had an office at 65, West Regent Street, Glasgow. The T. Dykes & Robertson partnership was dissolved in c.1905. In 1906 Dykes formed a new partnership with Hugh Dale as Thomas Dykes & Dale (1872-?). Meanwhile, Robertson formed a partnership, Bryden & Robertson, with Andrew Francis Stewart Bryden (1876-1917).

Worked in

UK

Links

- Dictionary of Scottish Architects 1660-1980

http://www.scottisharchitects.org.uk/architect_full.php?id=200117

- Historic Environment Scotland - United Reform Church, Leven Street, Dunbarton

<http://portal.historicenvironment.scot/designation/LB50543>