

Morley Horder & Poulter 1919 - 1925

Morley Horder & Poulter was an architectural partnership formed in London, England in 1919 by Percy Richard Morley Horder (1870-1944) and Briant Alfred Poulter (1881-1972). The partnership was dissolved in 1925

Worked in

UK

Works

Architectural projects by the practice included the National Institute of Agricultural Botany in Cambridge, Cambridgeshire (1919-21); buildings for University College, Nottingham, now the University of Nottingham (1922-28); and a number of shops for Boots the Chemists