

Diamond, John

John Diamond worked as an architect in Britain during the 1940s and 1950s and was associated with the Design Research Unit. With Misha Black he designed the library and/or conference room for the National Institute of Economic and Social Research (c.1952), and the offices of British Olivetti Ltd. in London (c.1958). Diamond was also one of a team that designed the Regatta Restaurant at the Festival of Britain in 1951.
