

Robertson, Thomas Saunders 1835 - 1923

Thomas Saunders Robertson was born in Blairgowrie, Scotland in 1835 and was articled to Charles Edward (1816-1890) in Dundee in c.1851. By 1857 he was working with James Anderson Hamilton (1816-1875) in Edinburgh and possibly London. In 1859 Robertson returned to Dundee to join Edward in partnership as Edward & Robertson. They remained in partnership until Edward's death in 1890, following which Robertson worked alone.

He was a member of the Edinburgh Association of Architects. Sketches by him of a doorway at Ardblair Castle and the Church of Foulis Easter are illustrated in Edinburgh Architectural Association Sketch Book vol. II [2], new series, 1887-1894 plates 43 and 44. Robertson retired as an architect in 1904.

In addition to his work as an architect, Robertson was also a painter and exhibited at the Royal Glasgow Institute of the Fine Arts. He was the author of Progress of Art in English Church Architecture (London: Gay and Bird, 1897) and wrote numerous articles on church architecture and other matters.

He died in Dundee on 2 March 1923
