

Fletcher, Janet 1903 - 1999

Janet Fletcher [also known as Janet Pott] was born in London, England on 21 December 1903. In the late 1920s she studied at the Architectural Association Schools in London and was elected an Associate of the Royal Institute of British Architects (ARIBA) in 1930. Together with Elizabeth Denby (1884-1965) she was engaged on schemes that sought to improve working-class living conditions. She was a member of the Kensington Housing Association (KHA) and contributed to the KHA/T exhibition held in Westminster, London in 1931.

While a student at the Architectural Association she met Alison Shepherd (1898-1972) [prior to her marriage in 1928 known as Alison Sleight]. They collaborated on a number of architectural projects in the early 1930s as J. Shepherd & A. Shepherd and designed a three-bedroomed model flat for the first 'New Homes for Old' exhibition at the Building Trades Exhibition at Olympia in 1932. A kitchen designed by them for a workers' canteen in North Kensington, London is discussed, with a photograph, in Design in Modern Life (London: BBC, 1933 p. x), a pamphlet issued to accompany a series of talks on contemporary design broadcast by the BBC between April and June 1933.

In 1934 she married Anthony P. Pott and was subsequently known as Janet Pott.

Fletcher's address was given as 52 Campden Hill Square, London in 1933. In 1932 she visited New York and the following year Australia. Her address was given as Hillcote, Wheathampstead Road, Harpenden, Hertfordshire in 1930.

She died in 1999. Her death was registered in Kensington & Chelsea
