

McKissack, James 1875 - 1940

James McKissack was born in Glasgow, Scotland on 31 May 1875. His father, John McKissack (c.1844-1915), was a partner in the Glasgow architectural practice McKissack & Rowan, From 1889 he was an apprentice with the firm and, following the dissolution of the partnership in 1890, completed his apprenticeship with his father. He also attended Glasgow School of Art from 1890 to 1894. In 1900 he joined his father as a partner as John McKissack & Son. Following the death of his father in 1915, he continued the firm under its original name until his own death twenty-five years later. McKissack was particularly known as a designer of cinemas.

James McKissack was elected a member of the Glasgow Institute of Architects in 1907 and was admitted a Licentiate of the Royal Institute of British Architects (LRIBA) in 1911.

In addition to his work as an architect. he also had a keen interest in photography and was a member of the Glasgow and West of Scotland Photographic Federation. 'Cancer of Empire', a book on the slums of Glasgow by William Bolitho (London: G.P. Putnam, 1924) was illustrated with photographs by McKissack. He died in Glasgow on 24 June 1940
