

Moya, Hidalgo 1920 - 1994

John Hidalgo Moya [commonly known as Hidalgo Moya,, and as "Jacko" Moya] was born in Los Gatos, California on 5 May 1920 and moved to England as a small child. In 1938 he entered the Architectural Association Schools in London. He subsequently obtained his diploma at the AA and was elected an Associate of the Royal Institute of British Architects (ARIBA). In 1946, with Philip Powell (1921-2003), whom he had met at the AA, and Powell's brother, Michael Powell (1916-1971), he formed the architectural partnership Powell & Moya in London.

In 1950 Michael Powell left the practice to join London County Council Architects as Assistant Housing Architect.

Despite differences in temperament, Powell and Moya worked closely together on all projects. In 1961 Robert Henley and Peter Skinner entered the partnership. They were joined by John Cantwell and Bernard Throp in 1976, and the practice became Powell, Moya & Partners.

Moya retired from the practice in 1990, followed by Powell in 1991. He died in Hastings, Sussex on 3 August 1994
