

Ward, William Henry, senior 1844 - 1917

William Henry Ward, senior [also known as William Henry Ward] was born in Allanton, Lanarkshire, Scotland on 31 December 1844 and was articled to James Cranston in Oxford, England. Having completed his articles, Ward commenced independent practice as an architect in 1864 with an office at 27 Paradise Street, Birmingham. Not long after he relocated the practice to 29 1/2 Paradise Street, Birmingham where he remained for the next five decades. He practised alone until 1904 when he formed a partnership with his son, William Henry Ward, junior (1878-?).

William Henry Ward, senior retired in 1914, but soon returned to the practice when his son was called up for military service following the outbreak of World War One that year.

William Henry Ward, senior died in Folkestone, Kent on 10 October 1917.
