

Basevi, George Joshua 1794 - 1845

George Joshua Basevi* [commonly known as George Besevi] was born to Jewish parents in Greenwich, Kent [now London], England on 1 April 1794. He trained as an architect under Sir John Soane (1753-1837) in London from 1810 to 1816 during which time he also attended the Royal Academy Schools in London. In 1816 he set out on his Grand Tour of Continental Europe. He returned to England in 1819 and the following year commenced practice as an architect in London. In 1821 he was appointed surveyor to the Guardian Assurance Company.

Basevi was one of the founding fellows of the Society of British Architects [later Royal Society of British Architects] in 1834 and was a Fellow of the Society of Antiquaries (FSA). He died in Ely, Cambridgeshire on 16 October 1845 following a fall while inspecting repairs at the west tower of Ely Cathedral.

Basevi's first commission was the design of the church of St Thomas, Stockport, Cheshire (1822-25). Other commissions came from his family connections. These included several country houses such as Gatcombe Park, Gloucestershire for David Ricardo (c.1820); and Painswick House, Gloucestershire for W. H. Hyett (1827-32)

From 1825 to 1840 he was employed by W. G. Haldimand to supervise the building of houses in Belgrave Square, London. The success of his work in Belgravia led to a number of other major development projects in London. These included Alexander Square (1827–30) and Thurloe Square (c.1839–45) in South Kensington.

Other architectural works by Basevi included Truesdale's Hospital, Stamford, Lincolnshire (1832); Dr Fryer's almshouses, Stamford, Lincolnshire (1832); Fitzwilliam Museum, Trumpington Street, Cambridge (1837); St Saviour church, Walton Place Chelsea (1839–40); Holy Trinity, Twickenham, Middlesex (1840–41); and Coulsdon rectory, Surrey (1841–43); St Jude church in Chelsea (1843–44); Conservative Club, St. James's Street, London, with Sydney Smirke (1843–45); Parson's almshouses, St Mary Street, Ely, Cambridgeshire (1844–45); and St. Matthew's Church, Ely, Cambridgeshire (1845–46).
