

Wilkins, William 1778 - 1839

William Wilkins was born in Norwich, Norfolk, England on 31 August 1778. His father, William Wilkins (1774?-1815) was a building contractor and architect who, from c1785 to 1796, was a partner of Humphrey Repton (1752-1818), Wilkins junior studied at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge from 1796 to 1800. After a period in which he undertook research on early Italian and Greek architecture, he set up his own architectural practice in London in 1809. He soon acquired a reputation as the leading figure in the Greek Revival movement.

In 1837 Wilkins was appointed architect to the East India Company and in 1837 succeeded John Soane as Professor of Architecture at the Royal Academy, however, he died before delivering his first lecture. He died in Lesfield, Cambridge on 31 August 1839.
