

Ambler, Louis 1862 - 1946

Louis Ambler was born near Bradford, Yorkshire, England on 2 June 1862 and was articled to Henry Francis Lockwood and William Mawson (1828-1889) in Bradford. He then worked as an assistant to Robert William Edis (1839-1927) for nearly two years. He spent a further three months sketching in Europe and spent a period assisting the London architects George Frederick Bodley (1827-1907) and Thomas Garner (1839-1906).

In 1888 Ambler was elected an Associate of the Royal Institute of British Architects (ARIBA) and the following year set up an independent practice at 82 Abingdon Road, London. By 1892 he had relocated to The Clock House, Arundel Street, Strand, London, and from 1905 to 1934 his office was located at Temple Chambers, Temple Avenue, London.

A sketch and plan of 'Langwith Lodge', Nottinghamshire, designed by Ambler are illustrated in 'The Studio Yearbook of Decorative Art' 1907 (p.11), and two photographs of the hall and drawing room at Langwith Lodge, Nottinghamshire designed by Ambler are illustrated in 'The Studio Yearbook of Decorative Art' 1910 (p.18).

At the end of World War One he employed as a War Department Valuer (1918-19).

Ambler was the author of 'The Old Halls and Manor Houses of Yorkshire. With Some Examples of Other Houses Built Before the Year 1700' (London: B.T. Batsford, 1913).

He exhibited at the Royal Academy, London from 1890 to 1929. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects (FRIBA) in 1900. Ambler died in Islington, London on 1 April 1946.
