

Willcocks, Conrad Birdwood 1887 - 1972

Conrad Birdwood Willcocks was born Reading, Berkshire England, on 18 July 1887. He studied at University College, Reading and was articled to William George Attneave Hambling (1848-?)

He opened an independent practice in Reading in 1908. In 1919 he formed a partnership with Joseph Reginald Greenaway who had worked with him prior to World One. Willcocks & Greenaway worked mainly on projects in the Berkshire area such as the Arthur Hill Memorial Baths in Reading and All Saints Hall in Reading. They dissolved the partnership in August 1931, although they both continued to work out of the same office at 11 Friar Street, Reading.

A drawing and ground-floor plan of cottages at Whitley Wood, Berkshire, designed by Willcocks is featured in 'The Studio Yearbook of Decorative Art' 1911 (p.80); A drawing of a cottage near London designed by him is illustrated in 'The Studio Yearbook of Decorative Art' 1913 (p.79); and photographs of the living room at 'Coldmoor Cottage', Henley-on-Thames and the entrance to 'Willstead' in Caversham Heights, Reading, designed by him are illustrated in 'The Studio Yearbook of Decorative Art' 1922 (p.69).

Willcocks was made an Associate of the Royal Institute of British Architects (ARIBA) in 1912 and a Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects (FRIBA) in 1920. During the 1940s he was Hon. Secretary of the Council for Education in Appreciation of Physical Environment (CEAPE) and in this capacity wrote an article on the importance of a well-designed environment in instilling in children an appreciation of design for 'Art and Industry' vol.38, no.223, January 1945 (pp.14-19). Willcocks died on 25 December 1972
