

Myers, Graham 1746 - 1801

Graham Myers was born in Whitehaven, Cumberland, England on 26 April 1746. He was the eldest son of the architect Christopher Myers (1717-1789) and presumably moved with his father to Ireland in the early 1750s. Nothing is known about his training as an architect. Following the death of his father in 1789, he was appointed architect to Trinity College, Dublin, a position previously held by his father. Graham Myers died in 1801.

Note: there is some confusion over the work undertaken in Ireland by Christopher Myers (1717) and his sons, Christopher Myers (c.1754-1798) and Graham Myers (1746-1801)

Worked in

UK

Ireland

Links

• Dictionary of Irish Architects 1720-1940

<https://www.dia.ie/architects/view/3703/>