

Kaye-Parry, William 1853 - 1932

William Kaye-Parry was born in County Dublin, Ireland on 28 June 1853 and was articled to John J, McCurdy (c.1824-1885) in Dublin from 1870 to 1873. He then studied engineering at Trinity College, Dublin from where he graduated in 1875. In 1880 he won a competition for a design for a concert hall at the Royal Irish Academy of Music in Dublin. From 1889 to 1903 he was surveyor to the Kingstown Estate in Dublin. He commenced practice as an architect and civil engineer in Dublin in 1877. From 1889 to 1903 he was surveyor to the Kingstown Estate. In 1899 he formed a partnership with George Murray Ross (1852-1927). The practice specialised in domestic sanitation and undertook a number significant drainage and sewage schemes.

In 1927, following the death of Ross, Kaye-Parry took his assistant, Arnold Francis Hendy (1894-1958) into partnership, the practice being known as Kay-Parry & Hendy.

Kaye-Parry was elected a member of the Royal Institute of the Architects of Ireland (RIAI) in 1883 and a Fellow of the RIAI in 1899. He was also elected a Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects (FRIBA) that year. He was vice-president of the RIAI from 1914 to 1916 and its president from 1917 to 1919. Towards the end of his life, Kaye-Parry moved to London where he died on 10 November 1932. His address was given as 136 Delaware Mansions, Paddington, London, at time of death.
